On the other hand, we will hear from Manny Pangilinan, one of the stalwarts of Philippine business, his views of how these policies can push the Philippines forward as the next star of the ASEAN, and hopefully of the bigger Asia-Pacific region. Moderators: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Dhinesh Bhaskaran Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Hon. 9:00 AM – 10:30 AM	Tax Issues Relating to Private Equity Investment in the ASEAN Region Private Equity (PE) and Institutional Investors (II) have been searching globally to invest their accumulated cash that by one estimate, is nearing US $1 Trillion. The enormous potential of ASEAN region, especially the less-developed countries therein, therefore has not escaped the attention of PE and II. Reasons are obvious: rapid economic growth, formation of middle-class, urbanization and the need for social infrastructure, young population that is the envy of the rest of the world and,	Abaca	Tax Law Committee to be sure, increasing political stability and economic liberalization.

However, after a spectacular growth of investment appetite in these “frontier” ASEAN countries for the past several years, we have seen a slow-down during the past year, at least in some. While it is unclear whether this is something temporary, as investors try to digest their investments across several countries with different language, culture and customs or more long-lasting and structural, as investors grappling with the complexity of dealing with each country legal, tax, political and economic systems, PE and II hungry for returns cannot ignore these markets especially those that depart from OECD tax systems, has been a major challenge by global PE investors.

This session will explore the key tax (and where applicable, important legal and regulatory) issues and challenges faced by PE and II in selected frontier ASEAN countries. Since the main objective is to discuss, explore and identify tax rules and concepts of jurisdictions that have not received significant attention as other leading Asian and developed ASEAN jurisdictions, we will also explore investing in Taiwan by PE and II. Within the diversity of tax systems discussed, we will attempt to identify similarities as well as differences that can impact the decision by PE and II to invest as well as the after-tax return on their investment.

Areas of cooperation under the initiative include policy coordination, facilities connectivity, unimpeded trade, financial integration, and people-to-people bonds, which are likely to have far-reaching effects for many disciplines, including international arbitration. Some have called for uniform arbitral process to address the specific needs arising out of One Belt One Road. 9:00 AM – 10:30 AM	Billing Structures in Cross-Border	Narra A	Cross Border

	Matters Cross border legal work continues to ride the globalization wave and grow at a steady pace. As markets mature, competitive prices are setting in and clients are becoming more sensitive about legal expenditure. Deals and drafting are becoming increasingly standardized, leading to lawyers' role getting limited and mostly restricted to highly complex, high value, first-of-its-kind deals only. This session will touch upon the issues of clients demanding fixed fee quotes, hourly blended rates, fee pressures leading to different fee structures being adopted by law firms. The session will also cover how the use of technology is becoming more rampant and artificial intelligence is now being introduced to replace lawyers and remain competitive. The panel will discuss how law firms manage cross border work successfully, such as addressing compliance requirements across multiple jurisdictions, making optimal use of local counsel advice and producing internationally resonant drafting that the parties can engage with easily. Co-moderator: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Myles Seto (Hongkong) • Charandeep Kaur (India) Panelists (CBIC): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Hermann Knott (Germany) • Fausto Romero-Miura (Spain) • Eriko Hayashi (Japan) • Maxim Alekseyev (Russia) • Stefano Micheli (Italy) 		Investment Committee and Legal Practice Committee
9:00 AM – 10:30 AM	Beyond Limited Liabilities: Potential Exposure of Parent Companies, Subsidiaries, and Directors Arising Out of Environmental and Insolvency	Narra C

	Situations The fundamentals of commercial companies include the limited liability of the shareholders to the funds they invest and the freedom of directors to exercise "reasonable" judgment in managing the business. However, some specific situations lead to results that clash with these principles. Cross border transactions or corporate structures compound the difficulty when the regulators attempt to hold parent companies liable for their subsidiaries and make directors strictly liable for environmental liabilities and other regulatory matters. However, environmental regulators' attempts to force a clean-up and hold companies to account can very effectively be side tracked or derailed by insolvency proceedings. With no corporate assets available for remediation, directors may suddenly find themselves on the hook. Further, receivers and trustees dare not tread on contaminated ground lest they face financial ruin. Among government, victims of the pollution, creditors and the insolvent polluter, whose interests should prevail? How should key principles of environmental law and insolvency law be reconciled with fundamental corporate principles of limited liability and separate corporate entities? Co-moderator/Speaker: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • David Ward (Canada) • Shweta Bharti (India) Panelists: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Kosturi Ghosh (India) • Bui Ngoc Hong (Vietnam) • Juan Martin Allende (Argentina) 		Joint Session of: Cross Border Investment Committee Environmental Law Committee And Insolvency Committee

The 2 sessions are based on an interactive exercise on how to build up an action plan and simulate a press conference. During the press conference and debrief phase in session 2 legal and communication issues will be discussed.

The purposes of these 2 very pragmatic sessions are:

- To study a business case involving different types of actors (legal, communication, business)
- To highlight the main legal issues arising when handling a major crisis in multiple jurisdictions
- To focus on the importance of involving the legal when communicating with the media and with stakeholders
- To formulate strategies on the safeguard of privilege and work-product protection (attorney-client privilege and legal privilege in various jurisdictions)
- To provide the participants with a crisis protocol for all types of crisis. The protocol may be implemented both by the in-house counsel and the external lawyers who can bring their expertise to train the business and the in-house legal.

The sessions will also involve returns on experience both from in-house counsel and external lawyers.

What happens on Legal Day One? Is it just housekeeping activity for legal advisors?

In times of low growth, completed deals are expected to create the costs savings and the business synergies expected pre-deal by the management of the acquirer. Therefore, post-deal integration shall be given the necessary attention and resources; the team carrying out the integration shall 'own' the integration plan, as much as the transaction team in order to achieve better integration: legal advisors are to be an integral part of such team.

Speakers of different jurisdictions will discuss issues they have encountered in their practice as external advisors and in-house counsels, for mergers, acquisitions and divestitures, regarding several interdisciplinary topics. Such issues arise not only in cross-border transactions, but also in domestic transactions, between companies with global reach.

Among those, legal entities and contracts rationalization, human resources issues, IP related matters, regulatory and compliance, pre-litigation for non-performance or delays in existing contracts shall be considered well in advance when planning integration and its legal implementation.

9:00 AM – 10:30 AM	Venture Capital in Asia – Key Differences Compared to the Silicon Valley Model of Venture Capital Venture capital has become a major force in global financing and corporate activity. 2016 saw nearly USD130 billion invested globally over 13,655 completed deals. Although	Narra C	Cross Border Investment Committee global deal volumes and numbers in 2016 fell slightly from the highs of 2015, amounts invested in Asia remained steady, where over USD39 billion was invested over 1,742 deals. (Information taken from KPMG Enterprise Venture Pulse Q4 2016 Global Analysis of Venture Funding.) This panel will look into VC activity in Asia and examine key differences between how VC financings are done in Asia and in what is generally considered the birthplace and the leader of VC: Silicon Valley.

The panel will begin by situating the Asia VC market in the context of global VC: how much has VC activity in Asia grown in the past 10 years compared to the rest of the world, how active are Asian VC funds in Asia and outside Asia, and which are the most active US and European VC funds in Asia?

The panel will then consider significant differences in deal terms between Asia and Silicon Valley, including participation rights in liquidations (almost non-existent in SV; common in Asia), registration rights (ubiquitous in SV but rarely seen in Asia), indemnification and investor remedies against founders (rarely seen in SV; sometimes seen in Asia), and convertible debt and equity investments (very common in early-stage SV companies; quite rare in Asia). [NOTE: THIS LIST MAY CHANGE DEPENDING ON THE VIEWS OF THE PANELISTS.]

The panel will close by taking up the role of lawyers in VC financings in Asia. The VC community in Silicon Valley has been trying to limit the role of lawyers in VC financings to keep costs down, but lawyers continue to

	play an important role in VC financings in the US. Lawyers usually play a more limited role in VC financings in Asia. 	The FIDIC forms are the most frequently used form of construction contract terms for international construction projects. The long-awaited revisions to the 1999 edition of the FIDIC forms of contract for construction, design and build and EPC contracting (the Red, Yellow and Silver Books) were launched at the FIDIC conference in London on 5-7 December 2017. Our speakers will discuss the changes to the contracts, including the extent to which FIDIC has responded to criticisms of the 1999 forms, whether those provisions which most often cause difficulties between the contracting parties have been improved, and how the changes to the forms might impact on the interpretation of construction contracts based on the 1999 editions. Moderator <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Karen Gough (UK) Panelists: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Miranda Liu (Taiwan) • Paul Sandosham (Singapore) • Peter Atkinson (Singapore)
