

LALIVE's Energy practice: three partners recognized by Who's Who Legal's first country report on Switzerland

Georges Racine, Matthias Scherer and Alexander Troller have been recommended in the 2013 Who's Who: Switzerland ranking of leading lawyers in the energy sector (power / oil& gas), making LALIVE's "substantial energy practice" the highest ranked in Switzerland in terms of number of lawyers selected for this area.

The editorial highlights Georges Racine's expertise in cross-border projects and transactions in the energy sector and Matthias Scherer, who is also recommended in the International Who's Who of international commercial arbitration, as a "highly regarded litigator and arbitrator in energy proceedings." As for Alexander Troller he is recognized as "one of the best oil and gas lawyers in the world".

LALIVE's substantial international practice in the energy sector spans all energy sources, including renewable energy. The firm is particularly active in emerging markets and developing countries. LALIVE in QATAR LLC is a tangible demonstration of the importance that the firm attaches to the energy sector. The firm has developed a strong expertise over the years in both advisory and dispute resolution services, advising clients on the structuring, financing and negotiation of large and complex international transactions in the energy sector, and representing clients in complex disputes, including pricing disputes in the oil and gas sector.
