

Alexander Troller embarks on new career at Rolex

LALIVE is extremely proud to announce that longstanding Partner Alexander Troller has been appointed first-ever General Counsel of Rolex, after nearly three decades with the firm. Alexander leaves with our immense gratitude for his contribution and very best wishes. He will start his new role at Rolex in the New Year, based in Geneva.

As Domitille Baizeau, LALIVE's Managing Partner comments: 'This newly created, highly prestigious, position is testament to Alexander's great talent. His contribution to LALIVE is immeasurable, both as a managing partner for over 10 years and as a leading practitioner. He leaves one of the largest and strongest litigation teams in Switzerland. While we will miss him greatly, Alexander will always remain a close friend of the firm, and we wish him all the very best at Rolex.'

LALIVE's 100 lawyers, working across Geneva, Zurich and London, focus on dispute resolution (litigation and international arbitration) as well as private client and business advisory.