Marc Henzelin and Sonja Maeder Morvant earn recognition as thought leaders in investigations

Following the publication of Who's Who Legal and Global Investigations Review's guide to the leading lawyers worldwide in the field of investigations (Who's Who Legal: Investigations), we are pleased to announce that partner Marc Henzelin and Counsel Sonja Maeder Morvant have been ranked among the top 10 Thought Leaders in Investigations in the EMEA region and the only two in Switzerland.

The report, which is compiled following extensive research and feedback gathered from peers, corporate counsel and other market sources, features 558 practitioners from 269 firms across 40 jurisdictions who stand out for their work assisting companies and individuals on both external and internal investigations as well as external enforcement proceedings and dawn raids.

In the analysis, Marc Henzelin wins praise as a "great" investigations practitioner, and is recognised for his expert handling of both national and international proceedings, while Sonja Maeder Morvant is described as a "first-class litigator, recognised for her strong expertise in white-collar crime and related internal and external investigations".

Marc Henzelin and Sonja Maeder Morvant are members of the firm's established investigations practice, which currently advises governments and corporate clients in a number of complex investigations worldwide. Please see further information on our practice here.
