BIOGRAPHY

Tessa Hayes joined LALIVE in 2016 as an associate, representing clients in international commercial and investor-state arbitrations in a variety of sectors. In 2019 she became knowledge manager, working to ensure the effective sharing and management of information and expertise within the firm's international arbitration group.

Before joining the firm, she was a member of the dispute resolution group at Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer in New York. Tessa received her J.D. (Juris Doctor) from Harvard Law School.

She also holds a bachelor's degree in comparative literature from Yale University, as well as a master's degree in translation and a Certificate in Transnational Law, both from the University of Geneva.
